

Nvidia closes Russian offices, will fly relocating employees out of the country, report says

Last Updated: Oct. 4, 2022 at 3:37 p.m. ET
First Published: Oct. 4, 2022 at 2:35 p.m. ET

By James Rogers Follow

4

Chipmaker Nvidia is ending its activities in Russia, and is giving its employees in the country the opportunity to relocate

A sign is posted at the Nvidia headquarters on May 25, 2022 in Santa Clara, California. The chipmaker is ending its activities in Russia, and is giving its employees in the country the opportunity to relocate.

JUSTIN SULLIVAN/GETTY IMAGES

Referenced Symbols

NVDA -3.50% ▾ INTC -0.95% ▾ GOOGL -0.59% ▾ AAPL -0.36% ▾ IBM -0.12% ▾ SPX -0.32% ▾

Listen to article
3 minutes

Chipmaker Nvidia is ending its activities in Russia, and is giving its employees in the country the opportunity to relocate.

In a statement, Nvidia Corp. NVDA, -3.49% confirmed that it is ceasing all activities and closing its offices in Russia. “After previously suspending shipments to the country, we had continued to maintain our office to support our employees and their families,” the company added. “With recent developments, we can no longer operate effectively there.”

All employees will be given the option of continuing their jobs in other countries, Nvidia said.

Nvidia stopped selling its products in Russia in March, in the wake of Russia’s devastating invasion of Ukraine, the Wall Street Journal reports. Russia has historically accounted for about 2% of Nvidia’s revenue historically, the company’s CFO Colette Kress said, during its fiscal first-quarter conference call in May.

See Now: As Ukraine claws back territory, the IMF is crucial to gaining more financial support from Kyiv’s allies, says National Bank chief

Citing a source close to the company, Forbes reports that Nvidia is now taking employees who agree to relocate to offices in other countries out of Russia on charter planes. Nvidia has not yet responded to a request for comment on the relocation effort. “Nvidia has made the right moral decision,” Mark Dixon, founder of the Moral Rating Agency, told MarketWatch. The Agency was set up to examine whether companies’ promises of exiting Russia have been realized, and its research includes both U.S. and overseas companies.

“For months [Nvidia] behaved like a confused humanitarian by keeping Russian employees on the payroll, because paying Russian salaries and Russian government taxes only helps finance humanitarian atrocities in Ukraine,” Dixon added. “By offering the employees jobs abroad, Nvidia is not only pulling the economic plug on Russia but also adding to brain drain.”

The chipmaker’s latest move is the perfect model for western companies to follow, according to Dixon. “It’s a double hit to Russia while allowing the company to take care of its employees,” he said. “A morally neat solution to tough trade-offs.”

See Now: Six months after Russia invaded Ukraine, Moral Rating Agency’s ‘Courage Index’ analyzes companies’ statements on Kremlin’s aggression

Nvidia rival Intel Corp. INTC, -0.93% announced on March 3 that it had suspended shipments to all customers in Russia and Belarus. On April 5, Intel suspended all its business operations in Russia.

Intel, along with fellow U.S. tech giants Alphabet Inc. GOOGL, -0.48%, Apple Inc. AAPL, -0.32%, and International Business Machines Corp. IBM, -0.09%, has also been identified as a “courageous” denouncer of Russia’s invasion by the Moral Rating Agency.

Nvidia shares, which have fallen 55.3% this year, were up 4.9% on Tuesday. The S&P 500 Index SPX, -0.28%, which has fallen 20.7% in 2022, was up 2.6% in Tuesday trading.

About the Author

James Rogers Email Twitter

James Rogers is a Financial Columnist for MarketWatch.

BACK TO TOP

MarketWatch

Copyright © 2022 MarketWatch, Inc. All rights reserved.

By using this site you agree to the Subscriber Agreement & Terms of Use, Privacy Notice, and Cookie Notice.

MARKETWATCH

Customer Center
Contact Us
Newsroom Roster
Virtual Stock Exchange
BigCharts
Copyright Policy
Manage Notifications

COMPANY

Dow Jones
Code of Conduct
Corrections
Reprints & Licensing
Digital Self Service
Your Ad Choices
Corporate Subscriptions
Accessibility

DOW JONES NETWORK

The Wall Street Journal
Barron's
Financial News London
realtor.com
Marston Global

Intraday Data provided by FACTSET and subject to terms of use. Historical and current end-of-day data provided by FACTSET. All quotes are in local exchange time. Real-time last sale data for U.S. stock quotes reflect trades reported through Nasdaq only. Intraday data delayed at least 15 minutes or per exchange requirements.